Giuliano Mazzuoli

Contagiri

It is not every day that someone designs a watch that is really different, but with his Contagiri, Giuliano Mazzuoli has done just that. The watch looks like the rear counter of a sports car and shows the time on a retrograde display. Giuliano is the third-generation Mazzuoli with an engineering, jewelry and goldsmith's diploma from the Technical School of Turin. He has already designed and produced the Mecanorum watch. The Contagiri rear counter in Italian has been specially developed for the launch of the exclusive Alfa Romeo 8C Competizione sports car. Mazzuoli is a former Alfa Romeo racing driver.

The white and black gear-driven case houses an automatic movement (signed calibro 810). The movement can be viewed and the time set by turning the bezel. The strap is made of rubber.
